THE SCIENTIFIC REPORTS
OF
KYOTO PREFECTURAL UNIVERSITY
HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCE
No. 58
2006 · 12

CONTENTS

[Articles]
Who Says, “Three Cheers of Israel”? : Ulysses and Bloom
........................................ Manabu ASAI ................................. (1)

The World’s No.1 Imperial Metropolis Is a Second-rate City
— The Discourse of Pride and Anxiety about London in the Aftermath of the Napoleonic Wars, with An Insight into Kyoto in the Early Meiji Period
........................................ Yuko NOGUCHI ................................. (13)

A Lexical Semantics Approach to Designing a More User-Friendly EFL Dictionary (in English)
........................................ Kensei SUGAYAMA ................................. (33)

Unterricht der Toten — eine Untersuchung zur dichterischen Welt von Hilde Domin—
........................................ Takeo KATO ................................. (47)

Spelling Reform and the Linguistic Science in the Nineteenth Century Britain:
Robert Latham and Henry Sweet
........................................ Michiyoko YAMAGUCHI ................................. (71)

Affirmative Sentences in Japanese and Patterns of the Thought of the Japanese, as illustrated in the Sentence “明日は雨です (It will rain tomorrow)” (in Chinese)
(日语的判断句与日本人的思惟方式 — 由“明日是雨です”谈起—)
........................................ ZHANG Zhongfeng ................................. (119)

Die Auflösung des Orakels — Mach, Freud und Hofmannsthals Elektra
........................................ Hakusui AOJI ................................. (1)

A Study on the Journal of the Imperial Chinese Mission to Korea, 1890.
........................................ Takashi OKAMOTO ................................. (11)

[Note]
A Restoration of the Land Statutes of 737 from Code of the Northern Song 宋 Dynasty, with Their Translation and Notes
........................................ Shinichiro WATANABE ................................. (39)

KYOTO PREFECTURAL UNIVERSITY
JAPAN